

YORK COURTHOUSE COMPLEX

Education and Learning

Welcome to The National Trust of Australia (WA)
Education and Learning site for the York Courthouse Complex.

The interpretation of the York Courthouse Complex includes the history of law and law enforcement in the region and shows the significance of this place in its development from settlement to the present day.

The National Trust of Australia (WA) offers a series of Plays for Performance that can be downloaded, rehearsed off site and performed at the York Courthouse Complex. The setting provides a unique opportunity for students to recreate through performance history and heritage in its original location. Spaces such as this perform by themselves. Adding actors and text makes for a rich learning experience.

The suggested suitability range is from Years 5 to 12 although The National Trust of Australia (WA) asks that teachers/leaders read through each play and use their discretion.

The main performance space is the 1874 courtroom. Students should be prepared for visitors to be in the Complex while they are performing.

All Plays link to the Western Australian Curriculum Framework through the Learning Outcomes of Society & Environment: ICP, TCC and Active Citizenship and English: Use of Texts, Contextual Understanding, Listening and Speaking
